Dr Sam Jones

Oncologist

Dr Jones completed his undergraduate medical training at the University of Queensland in 2007. He undertook basic physician training at the Royal Brisbane and Women's Hospital, and completed 3 years of advanced training in Medical Oncology in 2016. This training included work at the Royal Brisbane, Princess Alexandra, Mater, Toowoomba and Gold Coast Hospitals.

He has extensive experience managing all solid tumour types. He has been involved in many phase III trials exploring novel cancer drugs. He has been the guest speaker at several meetings in Cairns, Brisbane, and the Gold Coast, and is also a member of a number of local and international organisations involved in the care of patients with cancer.

His expertise involves the use of not just chemotherapy and hormone therapy, but a range of small targeted molecules, immunotherapy, and other new biological agents. Given the rapidly changing landscape of knowledge in cancer care, he is regularly attending conferences and staying up to date with the latest advances in treatments for cancer patients with all tumour sub-types.

Dr Jones brings an empathetic and positive attitude towards managing his patients with cancer. He is dedicated to always providing a professional service and enabling his patients to be exposed to the most cutting edge clinical trials. He believes that to achieve optimal outcomes, a focus needs to be not only on the cancer treatments, but also on the psychosocial dynamics of the patient and their families. This requires a holistic approach and working in the medical field for over a decade, Dr Jones has extensive experience in this area.

Dr Jones treats all solid tumour types, the following are some of his areas of special interest:

- Breast cancer
- Lung cancer
- Colorectal cancer
- Gynaecological cancers
